

The first UK National Joint Training for Police Officers and Police Interpreters

“Working together to obtain the best evidence”

9.30am – 4.30pm on Friday, September 11 2015

Cambridgeshire Constabulary Headquarters, Hinchinbrooke Park, Huntingdon, PE29 6NP

If you are a practising police interpreter or a police officer with experience in interviewing and statement taking this training course will enhance your skills in working together throughout the investigation cycle to ensure the best evidence.

Highlights of the day: best practice when obtaining evidence using an interpreter, the latest research, practical techniques, case studies, use of interpreters while running a large scale human trafficking/exploitation operations, the new Victims’ Hub and also reflection on similarities and differences in training of police officers and interpreters.

Some of the guest speakers: Superintendent Jon Burley of Gwent Police, Dr Rebecca Tipton of Manchester University, Associate professor Danielle D’Hayer of London Metropolitan University, Dr Krzysztof Kredens of Aston University.

We trust that this course will develop the new champions among police officers enabling them to cascade their new found knowledge.
