

Who knows how many more young women plan to travel to Syria? You can help stop them.

It's not just young men who are travelling to Syria. Several young women are now known to have left home for the conflict, leaving their devastated families in a state of fear.

We know that the strong bond between a mother and daughter can have a powerful influence on a young woman. You can talk to your daughter about her feelings. You could see changes in behaviour, or signs she may be about to travel to a conflict that millions are desperate to escape.

You can reach specially trained people for help and advice by calling 101.
